OPEN VENIRE NOT A SUCCESS

TENSEN CASE YESTERDAY,

a jury is any more effective than the regular venire, there certainly was not any evidence of it yesterday in Judge Morse's court. As was expected, about 10:30 a. m. Judge Morse ordered the clerk to issue an open venire for fifty persons. The sheriff was instructed to summon them forthwith, and a recess until 2 o'clock was taken.

There was a lively scene in the clerk's office about this time. Never before in the history of the state, that is, since statehood, had an order of this kind been necessary, and there was not an official in the building who knew how to go about executing it. Deputies were running around after files and records and bringing them into the presence of their chief, who bent anxiously over his desk with the district attorney, county attorney, sheriff and buildf, examining the revised statutes and searching for a precedent.

It was discovered in the record of the federal count of Oct. 16, 1884. On that day, in the trial of Rudger Clawson for unlawful cohabitation, Judge Zane records and note of the state out of Oct. 16, 1884. Sheriff Starts Out.

After the papers had been drawn up in legal form, Sheriff Naylor started a half-dozen deputies out in different di-rections. They did their work well, for rechas. They did diely work well, for the ventremen drifted into the court room, singly and in groups, until fifty-one had been counted. One deputy had raked broker's row for his men. But there are no new jurors. The open venire yielded thirty-three talesmen, and in addition to these, eight whose names were in the box overingh were examined, and, in turn, excused. Court adjourned until Monday, so that it is not possible that the introduction of evidence will begin with the beginning of next week. It is thought, however, that the two jurors still resulted will come from the second open venire of fifty, returnable Monday, as the sheriff will go out into the country for them, where the Mortensen case is not so notorious as in the city.

Excused for Bias.

The names drawn from the box yesterday morning were those of William J. Kemp. Rudolph Kinudsen, Robert E. Fowier, Albert Smith, J. M. Green, James King, Hiram S. Senofield and Echrain Foster, who were rapidly excused for bias.

On the open venire, J. L. Nebeker was the first who got into the column of "probabilities." The defense tried in derivable the state of the sile and the part of the sharp revelation for almost an hour. Nebelger, who is a clerk in the office of the presiding bishop of the Mormon church, testified that if James Sharp said he had a revelation concerning the guilt of Feter Mortensen, on the the cheory that Mr. Sharp is an honest man, he would believe it.

cast-iron gutter plates was submitted by the Warm Springs foundry, A. R. Lundin, manager, and was $4 each for the plates, which is the lowest bid that has ever been received for such work. The bid was accepted.

DICKERING FOR WATER.

Frank Knox, the banker, said he had a fixed opinion, and strong evidence would be required to remove it. The defense evidently wanted Mr. Knox, and did not challenge on this ground, nor until the talesman declared that he would be influenced if the defendant's wife were not in the court room.

Mr. Knox gave an amusing answer to the old question about the ninety-pline guilty and one innocent. He said he would try to keep out of the company. Seriously, he believed the greater good would be accomplished by convicting the ninety-nine guilty men, even if one innocent had to suffer.

The following were excused for bias:

siroyed It.

Richfield, May 23.—Hyrum Colby and son, Jean, of Vermilion had a somewhat thrilling experience in a bilizzard on the mountains a few days ago. Blinded by the wind and storm, they became lost and did not succeed in locating their camp until late in the afternoon. And when they did reach camp it was only to find a lot of ashes, their entire outfit having been burned. They sought shelter in a deserted cabin and by keeping a fire going all night kept warm, but were very hungry before they got to where they could get something to eat.

The storm has completed the almost entire destruction of Sevier county's fruit crop for this year. It is now estimated that there will be not to exceed 5 to 10 per cent of the crop that was promised a couple of weeks ago. Serious damage has also been done to the sugar beet crop of the county. Peter Austin of Lehi has made an examination of the patches and finds from 15 to 25 per cent of the stand injured. The crop will be replanted at once, the seed having arrived and the seeder being in readiness. If this does not prove a success, the land will be replowed and planted to bther crops.
